

Acknowledgments

First and foremost I want to thank Jesus, Immanuel, God with us: thank you, Lord, for guidance and grace in the process of developing this material; thank you for the privilege of watching your powerful, beautiful, elegant work in emotional healing sessions; and thank you for your patience and forgiveness regarding the many ways in which I have transferred the unresolved pain in my life onto you.

Thank you, Mom and Dad Lehman, for the strength, persistence, faithfulness, obedience, and radical discipleship that I learned from you and that have helped me to develop this material. And thank you for the integrity, humility, and grace that enables you to be two of my biggest fans, even though I share so openly about the ways in which our family was not perfect. Thank you to my patients, colleagues, friends, and family for being such good sports as I have developed and practiced these principles and tools in the context of our friendships. Thank you, Dr. E. James Wilder, for the many hours you have spent brainstorming with me regarding brain science, emotional healing, and spirituality. I would never have developed the material regarding the pain-processing pathway and relational circuits without your input, and it has been tremendously satisfying to work together in developing the group Immanuel exercises. Thank you, Mom Tsuyuki, for your faithful administrative support, and especially for preparing this material for print. Thank you to Pastor Velotta and Calvary Way International Fellowship, for the many ways you have supported and encouraged us. Thank you to our friend, Colleen Delaney, for your help with proof-reading. Thank you to Mary Anne Pfitzinger and her team at This Joy! Books—this book is greatly improved because of your expertise, patience, and care. And thank you to the reference librarians at the Evanston Public Library, for tracking down the many books and journal articles that have contributed to this project.

Last but not least, I want to thank my wife, Charlotte: thank you for your patience, especially during the years before I began to recognize and deal with my woundedness; thank you for your many valuable suggestions—this book (and practically everything else I have written) has been greatly improved by your editorial input; thank you for your support, care, and patience during the many times my relational circuits were off due to my being triggered by working on this project; and thank you for being my number one guinea pig. I love you and I couldn't have done this without you!
